

Connections

If you ever lose your connection to the network, to your printer, or to another device, just restart your computer. Almost without exception, your connection will be restored.

If you are printing to a 'network' printer connected to a print-server computer in your classroom, you must shut everything down, and re-start all devices, beginning with the printer, then the print-server, then all other computers.